NEWS AND COMMENTS.

NOTHING has happened in a very long time which has given the average newspaper editor more exquisite delight than the fact that Senator CALL, of Florida, was the other day rejected "by the skin of his teeth." They just beg themselves as they say "CALL has a close call," you see.

THE case of STUTTS, charged with robbery of the postoffice at Carthage, was tried in the United States Court at Greensboro last week with the result of the acquittal of the defendant. The Jonesboro Leader remarks that opinion on the matter is very much divided in Moore county, and that even now, after the jury's verdict, inquiring minds would like to solve the mystery of the burned letters found in the trunk of STUTTS.

THE laying of the corner-stone of the building for the Young Men's Christian Association in Wilmington on the 15th inst. was a notable event in the history of that city, whose people invested it with the imposing ceremonial which its importance deserved. The street pageant was impressive in numbers and significance, with a fine Masonic and military display, and eloquent addresses were delivered by Grand Master GUDGER and Rev. Dr. MOORE, of the Presbyterian Church.

IF the people of Charlotte will just "hold their grip" for a few days, and manage to keep smouldering the fiery feelings of the mob until we all get there with our music mills, the stirring clarionet, the "tinkling cymbal" and the "loud bassoon," the glorious burst of melody of Charlotte's jubilee shall pour peace into hearts inflamed like oil on troubled waters, and calm angry passions as the lullaby hushes the babe. Discord and violence can't live in an atmosphere vibrating with those silver chords of harmony as the morning sky pulsates with the coming light's first crimson rays.

SENATOR VANCE indignantly denies the newspaper stories of wine-bibbing and intoxication on the part of the Congressional delegation attending the remains of the late Senator HEARST to their resting-place on the Pacific coast. Even so much as a denial was unnecessary on the part of our Senator—the distinguished men composing that party are incapable of such a violation of decorum. He declares, however, that the protest against the expensive government funeral corteges of public men is well-grounded—that, while the accounts of the expenditure on such occasions are exaggerated, entirely too much money of the people is devoted to this purpose.

THE development of the strictly material resources of a great area of North Carolina—embracing the tide-water, middle and mountain sections of the State—is the great part of the mission of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, but it is only a part after all. Its long line of nearly 300 miles gives easy access to an unexcelled combination of delightful summer resorts—mineral springs of exceptional medicinal efficacy, surf-bathing, fishing, sailing, etc., without a parallel on the Atlantic coast, and natural scenery no whit inferior to the incomparable pictures of the French Broad. Enlarged hotel accommodations are in preparation to do justice to all these wonderful treasures and delights of nature; and, by the time the Norfolk & Western R. R. meets us on the Blue Ridge and the gap south of us is filled, such a tide of travel will set in with each summer as we have never before seen.

THE Wilson Mirror has entered on its tenth year. From its surface, unmarred yet by any touch of time, youth's image looks out upon us bright and beautiful—and about it how the master-hand has woven a framework rich in the flowers of exquisite fancy, brilliant in the coloring of fervid imagination, artistic in the harmonious mosaic of rhetoric's chaste figures, poetry's rythmic measures and the graceful conceptions of prose! Here the facile pen has paid its tribute to the mantling blush on beauty's cheek, and irradiated every line on the fresh-printed page with the soft, winning light of beauty's eye; here it has wreathed its immortelles about the flower-crowned grave of the loved, and sounded its stately pean before the mausoleum of the great; here it has chronicled the fruits of man's energy in industrial enterprise, and hailed with stirring notes of glad acclaim the march of progress—faithful historian of its people in all the events of their lives, tender sympathizer in their sorrows, sharer of their joys. May each recurring year only multiply the charms of every fair-limned picture of the Mirror.

PRESIDENT HARRISON must carry back with him to the White House very kindly memories of the South. Over and above the material progress and industrial development everywhere apparent, which cannot fail to be gratifying to one holding the chief magistracy over all this smiling prosperity and accumulating wealth, his journey has carried him through a fair land tendering its hospitality, through cities with their gates thrown open wide through immense crowds where hats are upraised, handkerchiefs flutter, and hearty voices unite in loud acclaim. This is well. We know the President to be the central figure of an administration reflecting the policy and principles of a party responsible for the past woes and sufferings of the old South, and in spite of which the new South grows, and expands, and blossoms as the rose; but we remember only that he is our Chief Executive, the first citizen of a reunited country in whose greatness we claim a share, in whose position among the nations of the earth we thrill with pride—and we pay him tribute with uncovered head throughout every step of his progress, with the best of our possessions wherever he halts to rest and refresh himself within our borders.

The Old South and the New.

New York Herald.]

I saw a curious bit in the drama of life the other day, and it seemed to stand out the more effectively for having, small as it was, a certain historical background.

I was taking a modest chop in a little Sixth Avenue restaurant. The waiters were negroes, and from the time I went in I had looked at the head waiter with interest. He was an elderly man, with the patient, subdued, gentle courtesy that told a story of "befo' de wah," and that affected the character of the very wrinkles in his ancient, well brushed dress-coat. He established, or rather he showed his willingness to establish, relations of an ideally intimate character with the patrons of the place, utterly servant-like, and yet prepared to note your tastes and cater to them with the devotion of friendship.

When I was half through my meal two young women with the air of ladies entered and sat down near me. I could not help overhearing their talk, quiet as it was, and it soon appeared that they belonged to the ever-increasing army of girl-bachelors that have taken the town. They were students at the Art League.

The old head waiter stood near by; then he came and changed the glass of celery for a fresher one. Then one of the young women asked him to have a certain window lowered at the top. He sent some one to do it, and then said to one of the girls, rearranging the table a little nervously: "Excuse me, but I've been hoping you'd excuse me since the first night you came in, if I asked you what paht of the South you come f'om?"

"Me?" said the girl pleasantly, "I come from Tennessee. I suppose you knew I was Southe'n by the way I talk?"

"Yes, 'm; yes, 'm," the old man said hastily, taking the plates from the waiter in charge, and speaking with an odd effect of flurry: "My young mist'ess she marry down in Tennessee. She was one ob de Kentucky Prentices." He stopped abruptly and looked at the girl, and she was staring at him. "She marry one ob de Tennessee Sinclairs," he added.

"Why, that was my mother!"

"She was my young mist'ess," said the old man.

The girl held out her hand to him. "Why, my mother always loved her old people so much," she said, the tears springing to her eyes. "She always wanted to know what became of all of them after the wah, but she never could learn much. Now"—she stopped. The whilom slave was trembling all over.

"Please tell—please tell her that Ike, Yellow Ike, alluz—"

The girl was looking at him steadfastly through a mist of tears—"She's dead!" she said.

The old man leaned hard on a chair a moment, and then the habits of a lifetime of self-control and deference to other people's comfort came to his aid; he stilled the workings of his wrinkled face, and took a dish from the waiter as he came up, although his hands still shook a little.

"I'll wait on these ladies," he said, and then gave some direction about another part of the room. He caught the proprietor's eye fixed rebukingly upon him, but he stuck to that table; he was going to wait on those ladies if it cost him his place.

Things went on silently for some moments, and then he said, as he brought a dish that had not been ordered, sotto voce, "There's nothing here fit for you, missy—is ye named for your ma?" The girl nodded.

"I thought I knowed you by the favor," he added, trying to smile his dog-like affection upon her, and then he took himself off a little distance, and stood waiting upon their call.

I was putting on my coat when I heard the Southern girl, who had been very silent, say to her friend: "I suppose he would rather never have seen me at all, really, than to see me heah like this." And then I left, but I think the girl was wrong.

What's in a Name?

Jewish Times.]

Europe signifies a country of white complexion, so named because the inhabitants were of a lighter complexion than those of Asia and Africa. Asia signifies between, or in the middle, from the fact that geographers place it between Europe and Africa. Africa signifies a land of corn and ears. It was celebrated for its abundance of corn and all sorts of grain.

Siberia signifies thrifty or dry—very appropriate; Spain a country of rabbits or conois. It was once so infested with these animals that it sued Augustus for an army to destroy them. Italy, a country of pitch, from its yielding great quantities of black pitch. Calabria, also, for the same reason. Gaul, modern France, signifies yellow-haired, as yellow hair characterized its inhabitants. The English for Caledonia is a high hill. This was a rugged, mountainous province in Scotland.

Hibernia is utmost, or last habitation, for beyond this to the westward the Phœnicians never extended their voyages. Britain, the country of tin, great quantities being found on it and adjacent islands. The Greeks called it Albion, which signifies in the Phœnician tongue either white or high mountain, from the whiteness of its shores or the high rocks on the western coast. Corsica, a woody place.

Sardinia signifies footsteps of men, which it resembles. Syracuse, bad flavor, so called from the unwholesome marsh on which it stood. Rhodes, serpents or dragons, which are produced in abundance. Sicily, the country of grapes. Scylla, the whirlpool of destruction. Ætna signifies a furnace, dark or smoky.

There Were Milliners in Those Days.

The ladies of the present day who flatter themselves that they dress expensively should read about Lollia, Paulina, Sabina and a few more of their Roman prototypes. Paulina, for instance, is known to have had a gown that cost $1,600,000. Pliny records the fact of seeing her at a plain citizen's wedding supper covered with pearls and emeralds valued at 40,000,000 sesterces, equivalent to $1,560,000. Sabina was the fair Roman dame who never travelled without a train of 500 asses, so that she might not miss her daily bath in asses' milk.

Yes, He Had Been to Pensacola.

New York Herald.]

"It is difficult for a Northerner to appreciate the terror that a rumor of yellow fever creates among the residents of the South," said a commercial traveller recently.

"The last time I was South," he continued, "there were a few supposed cases of the disease in Pensacola, Fla. It was several years ago. In order to protect their cities from a visitation of the plague the cities of New Orleans and Mobile established a severe quarantine against people coming from Pensacola.

I was leaving New Orleans with several commercial men, among whom was a great, big, jolly practical joker, a typical commercial traveller, who represented a Troy shirt and collar manufacturer. He was a man well on toward middle life.

As the Louisville and Nashville train drew nearer to Mobile, and had passed the only available connecting point with Pensacola, it was boarded by a quarantine officer.

He was a thoroughbred Southerner, a man whom you would instinctively call 'colonel' whether you knew he bore the customary Southern title or not.

He went through the cars, questioning each passenger upon where he had come from, and particularly if he had been anywhere near Pensacola. Finally he reached the Trojan traveller.

'Have you been to Pensacola?' he said.

The Trojan hesitated for a moment, and then replied, 'Yes, Colonel. I won't lie about it. I have been to Pensacola.' His companions looked at the man in amazement, the Colonel jumped about a foot in the air, while the other passengers in the car started precipitately for the doors.

'Do you know there is a quarantine against that place?' continued the Southerner.

'Yes,' replied the other.

'Well, you can't stop off at Mobile.'

'But I must. I have business there.'

'It makes no difference about your business,' continued the Colonel, positively. 'The Mobile board of health has passed resolutions quarantining against Pensacola, and you'll have to continue on this train.'

'I won't do any such thing,' said the drummer. 'I'm going to get off at Mobile. I've got an engagement with Johnnie Strauss, and I wouldn't miss seeing him for a good deal. He expects me.'

'I'll tell you what it is, my man,' answered the quarantine officer, 'there's a party of gentlemen on the railroad platform at Mobile armed with shot-guns that will look after you if you do get off.'

'But, Colonel,' said the drummer, seeing that the joke had gone far enough, 'it can't be as bad as that. It's some little time since I've been to Pensacola.'

'How long?' queried the Colonel, who had neglected to ask that all-important question.

'Well,' replied the other, 'I can't exactly recollect the day and the month. Perhaps you can assist me. I was in the Union Navy during the war. We had a little affair in Pensacola and another one right out in Mobile Bay. Do you recollect the date of the Pensacola event? If you do, that was the first, last and only time I was ever at Pensacola. It's about twenty years now, I think.'

A great shout went up from everyone in the car. The Colonel laughed as loudly as the rest.

'I'll tell you what it is, boys,' he said, 'the drinks are on me. I want you all to join me at the Battle House bar as soon as ever we reach Mobile.' Then turning to the Trojan, he added, 'I'll refresh your memory a little about those affairs at Pensacola and Mobile Bay. I was there myself.'"

A Descendant of Columbus.

Chicago Times.]

Americans who visit Madrid are surprised to learn that Christopher Columbus is still living there in excellent preservation, and still enjoys the title of Duke of Veragua, conferred upon the family by the King of Spain 350 years ago.

The first who bore the title was Luis, grandson of the discoverer, from whom it has descended lineally to the present duke, who bears also the identical name of his ancestor. Few of us know or care about the imaginary dukedom of Veragua, but no American can look with indifference upon a Christopher Columbus descended from the man who made the name illustrious and immortal 399 years ago.

Among other relics he has a very fine portrait of the navigator, some features of which reappear in the countenance of his descendant. Dr. Henry Field, of The Evangelist, visited this old gentleman a year or two ago. While looking alternately at the picture on the wall and the face of his host he perceived a considerable likeness between them. Dr. Field did not forget to remind him of the approaching four hundredth anniversary of the great discoverer, nor did he omit to invite the present Christopher Columbus to visit America on that occasion.

But the Duke of Veragua is an elderly gentleman and a Spaniard. Spaniards of the present day are not so fond of roaming the seas as their ancestors were. He could get to America much more comfortably than the first Christopher Columbus, but he was strongly of the opinion that the celebration should be held in Spain, the country that sent his ancestor forth on the glorious voyage of 1492. It is to be feared, therefore, that we shall not have the pleasure of seeing him in 1892.

The Giant of the German Army.

London Tid-Bits.]

Until quite lately Captain Pluskow, of the First Regiment of Guards, had been considered the biggest man in the German army. He measured over eighty inches in height. But, a short time since, a young Rhinelander joined the First Regiment of Foot Guards as a "one-year volunteer," who attains the colossal height of over seven feet, four and a half inches. Since 1850 the First Regiment of Guards has not had so tall a man. At that time they had a man so tall that everything, even his bedstead, had to be made specially for him. His accoutrements are preserved still among the curios of the regiment.

A Story of the Pinnacle.

Correspondence New York Herald.]

As we rode along towards the picturesque valley of Powell River the Pinnacle, as the highest point on the peak above Cumberland Gap is called, rose majestically upon our left. Near the base of this mountain and nearer to us was the "Castalian Font" and some of the other mineral springs; nearer still, on the other side of the valley, over which the sanitarium and hotel look, stood Harrogate Inn, while Harrogate Station, on the Rock Gap extension of the Louisville & Nasheville road, was just in our rear. A high-gable, red farm-house, which has been fitted up by F. Randolph Curtis, of the University Club, New York, lay immediately in our pathway. As we rode by it one of the native guides told this story about the farmhouse:—

"Colonel Thornburgh, brother of Major Thornburgh, who was killed by the Indians some years ago, was in command of a detachment of Union soldiers who held Cumberland Gap for a while during the war. The Gap was a strategic point of great importance, being the entrance to the State of Kentucky, which the Confederates were constantly trying to enlist under their banners. The Gap was occupied by one army or another almost constantly. There was a battery of artillery close by the Pinnacle on the top of that high peak up there, and one day, while in charge of it, Colonel Thornburgh, the story goes, happened to direct his field glasses at this farm-house, which, by the way, numbered among its occupants two very pretty girls. As Colonel Thornburgh gazed in a dreamy sort of way at the old cherry trees you see there, waiting on his mountain top three miles away, perhaps, for the glimpse of a pretty ankle or the sight of a fair face, to his intense surprise he saw a half-dozen Confederate officers dash up on horseback, tie their steeds to these same cherry trees, and enter the house, where they were evidently warmly received by the young ladies. The pickets of the two armies were constantly almost within hailing distance hereabouts, so the visit of the Confederate officers to this farm-house was not so very surprising, after all; but it was more than Thornburgh could stand.

"By means of his heliograph signal code he at once flagged to his commanding officer, who was somewhere within easy reach, on the other side of the mountain, I believe, the scene he had just witnessed, and asked permission to cannonade the farm-house with his battery. The answer came back:—'You may fire just one shot.'

"So Thornburgh selected his biggest gun, trained and depressed it himself with great care, aimed it and fired it, anxiously watching the result. The shell sang through the air, for the aim was excellent, until it reached a point just above this clump of trees, where it burst in mid-air, riddling the cherry trees, almost stampeding the horses and causing a general alarm inside."

Remarkable Predictions Concerning Great Men.

For ten predictions that come true, many hundred fail, of which we never hear. Many a fond mother predicts a professorship, or judgeship, or bishopric, for a favorite son, who nevertheless slinks through the world among the crowd of unknown people. for all that, sundry remarkable predictions have at times been uttered which have become true.

Sylla said of Cæsar, when he pardoned him at the earnest entreaty of his friends: "You wish his pardon—I consent; but know that this young man, whose life you so eagerly plead for, will prove the most deadly enemy of the party which you and I have defended. There is in Cæsar more than a Marius." The prediction was realized.

Thomas Aquinas was so unusually simple and reserved in his conversation that his fellow-students regarded him as a very mediocre person, and jocularly called him "The Dumb Ox of Sicily." His master, Albert, not knowing himself what to think, took occasion one day before a large assemblage to interrogate him on very profound questions, to which the disciple replied with so penetrating a sagacity that Albert turned toward the youths who surrounded his chair, and said: "You call brother Thomas a 'dumb ox,' but be assured that one day the noise of his doctrines will be heard all over the world."

At eighteen, Condi, afterward Cardinal de Retz, composed certain reminiscence of early studies, on reading which Richelieu exclaimed, "Here's a dangerous fellow."

Marshal Turenne, in his early youth, prophetically foretold the distinction in arms to which he would rise. But doubtless there are few youths who enter the army, full of ardor and courage, who do not predict for themselves the career of a hero and a conqueror.

Milton, in his early writings, foreshadowed his great poem then not matured in his mind. He declared his intention, many years before he commenced his task, of writing some great poem for posterity, "which the world would not willingly let die."

Bossuet, when a youth, was presented to a number of prelates by one of the bishops of his church, who said of him, when he had left, "That young man who has just gone forth will be one of the greatest luminaries of the church."

Mazarin early predicted the brilliant career of Louis XIV. He said of him, "He has in him stuff for four kings;" and at another time, "He may take the road a little later than others, but he will go much farther." One day a mason named Barbe said to Madame de Maintenon, who was at that time the wife of Scarron: "After much trouble a great king will love you; you will reign, but, although at the summit of favor, it will be of no benefit to you." He added some remarkable details, which appeared to cause her some emotion. Her friends rallied her about the predictions when the conjuror said to them, with the air of a man confident of the truth of what he said, "You will be glad to kiss the hem of her garment then, instead of amusing yourself at her expense."

Just One Obstacle.

"Believe me, George dear, the fact that you are not wealthy makes no difference in my love for you," she said. "I love you for yourself alone. I would choose love in a cottage rather than a union without affection in a costly mansion."

"Darling," he said, "I am glad to hear you speak thus. There is but one obstacle to prevent our marriage."

"And what is that?" she asked.

"I can't raise half enough money to get a cottage."

GOV. HOLT'S SUCCESSOR.

The recent death of Governor Daniel G. Fowle, and the consequent succession of Lieut. Governor Holt to the Executive chair as Chief Magistrate of the State of North Carolina, and the accepted failure of the last State Senate to elect a president pro tem., has raised the question as to "who would be the next Governor of North Carolina should Governor Holt die in office." It has gone forth, however, that "in the event of the death of Governor Holt, it is provided in the constitution that the Secretary of State shall call the Senate in extra session, to elect a president pro tem., who would be Governor for the balance of the term."

We are therefore of the opinion that the State should no longer be placed in the attitude of being minus a Governor, as would of necessity be the case, in the event of Governor Holt's "sudden taking off." Necessarily it would require several day and possibly weeks for the Secretary of State to convene a special session of the General Assembly; and, with the confusion and intrigue of politicians and demagogues to get possession of the machinery and win the prize, the State would have no authorized head, with full power and authority to act, let the emergencies be what they may—for at least twenty to thirty days. A glance, then, at the awkwardness of the situation should be sufficient for an aplication of the remedy for the apparent evil.

In other words, the same needs for a President of the Senate, or Lieutenant Governor, exist to-day under the present circumstances that existed when Governor Fowle was elected and inaugurated. For instance, let us suppose that Governor Holt be called away—out of the State—or prostrated with sickness, and thus rendered unable and incompetent to administer the important affairs of his office in the hour of some great emergency: what would be the result? Where is the Lieutenant Governor to act and assume the duties and functions of the Governor-in-chief, on such occasions? Indeed, no stronger argument could be adduced for the election, without delay, of a successor to Governor Holt, as President of the Senate, than the importance of a Lieutenant Governor has so recently established.

VERY SENSIBLE TALK.

We want OBSERVER readers through all this section of North Carolina to read the communication of "X." on the 3rd (supplement) page of this issue. Vigorous and incisive as his language is, he does not, in our opinion, one whit overestimate the manifold substantial benefits which would accrue to us from the construction of the Fayetteville & Albemarle R. R., nor is he needlessly sounding an alarm in showing the grave danger of delay about evincing our cooperation with this great work.

Nothing could prove a more serious blow to the business interests of this community than a flank movement south of us, deflecting the line to some other terminus than its natural one of the head of Cape Fear River navigation, and nothing would so increase our volume of trade, give such an impetus to our manufacturing enterprises, and go so far to restore our former commercial prestige, as this railway communication with a people whose father's were Fayetteville's best customers fifty years ago. We would be greeted by a population with arms spread wide in welcome; we would possess ourselves of a fair territory of virgin resources almost untouched by man's hand; and we would pierce nearly the centre of the richest gold region in the South. Vast areas of round pine and other timbers, extensive mineral deposits and a flourishing farming country would lavish their wealth upon us, while, with the railroad facilities that we already enjoy, we would have put ourselves beyond the contingency of any future "parallels" or "cut-offs."

The people of Fayetteville cannot afford to hesitate here. Action in the matter seems to us imperative, and action without delay.

What Good Work Will Do.

A few mornings since we accompanied Mr. W. P. Wemyss over to his place in the "Red Bone" suburb, and we were astonished to note how many object-lessons in miniature he was presenting to demonstrate the great results to be evolved from intensive farming.

He has the area of only the ordinary town garden patch, but he has made his soil very prolific, and in onions he has attained remarkable success. Last September he planted an Italian variety, catalogued to grow but 1½ inches in diameter, and his crop will turn out onions double that size. His Jersey Wakefield cabbage are commencing to bunch their leaves and "head," and from a little plat of ground, 20x30 feet, he has, during the winter and early spring, sold about $10 worth of nice lettuce.

We stopped at the pump in the yard, and were surprised to find an almost chalybeate water; it is very cold and clear, and explains the healthfulness of that neighborhood. Before leaving we shook hands with the venerable W. T. Frizell—very aged and, we regret to see, very feeble; he has seen generations grow up around him, and now looks back upon over three-quarters of a century of the history of his town and people.

JULIUS A. GRAY,

Late President of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway.

THE HONORED DEAD.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF JULIUS A. GRAY.

A People Bowed in Sympathetic Grief—The Whole State Sends Mourners to His Obsequies—Suspension of Business in Greensboro—Rev Dr. J. Henry Smith at West Market Street Methodist Church—A Great Concourse in Procession to Greene Hill Cemetery—Memorial Resolutions, Flowers in Tribute, Etc., Etc.

Presenting that well-rounded and finished character, that combination of qualities which adorn society, furnish the best elements of true citizenship, present manhood in its kindliest aspect, give healthful impetus to the community's material and moral interests, and throw around home-life the mellow influences of refining culture and the safeguards of a steadfast and tender love:—the lamented Julius A. Gray could not pass from life without stirring profound emotions everywhere, and opening the fountains of hearts far removed from the stricken ones about the family hearthstone; and it is not strange that about his bier were manifestations of sorrow rarely evoked by the departure from life of the private citizen and the public servant, and that the cortege which reverently committed his remains to the dust was a representative body of the people of North Carolina.

DELEGATIONS OVER THE ROAD.

An opportunity was afforded to all persons living along the line of railway, who desired to do so, to attend the funeral services, and invitations were issued to that effect by Capt. W. E. Kyle, General Freight and Passenger Agent, to the business men and others in Fayetteville, Wilmington, etc. Special cars with delegates from Bennettsville, Wilmington and other points east and south of this city were attached to the Fayetteville train at the depot at 9 o'clock on Thursday, this place sending a large number of its leading and prominent citizens. We were especially gratified that Fayetteville's sympathy found graceful attestation in the presence of many ladies, the officers' private car being occupied by Mrs. A. H. Slocomb, Mrs. E. L. Pemberton, Mrs. W. E. Kyle, Mrs W. J. McDiarmid, Mrs. S. J. Solms, Miss Emma Murchison, Miss Alice Pemberton, Miss Eliza Rose, Miss Maggie Rose, Miss Eliza Williams, Miss Janie Kyle, Miss Nannie Kyle, Miss Sallie Whitfield.

HIS HOME IN MOURNING.

The gravity and solemnity upon every face, the hush upon the streets, the lull of traffic, the ornate drapings of the railway offices, rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, offices of the Bessemer Steel Company, the National Bank (in the window of which, bordered with crape, was a large picture of the deceased), and the closing of places of business at 2 o'clock—all told how deeply the "City of Flowers" grieved for its departed son.

THE FUNERAL.

At 2:20 o'clock the remains were conveyed from "Blandwood," the beautiful home of Col. Gray and family, to West Market Street Methodist Church, the route of the procession being up West Washington street, through South Elm and down West Market to the church building, with the following pall-bearers: W. E. Kyle, C. D. Benbow, H. L. Fry, M. S. Sherwood, R. W. Bidgood, C. H. Ireland, E. J. Lilly, Jr., W. H. McFarland. Following these were the honorary pall-bearers (in whom were included also the Directors of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway and North State Improvement Companies): Jno. D. Williams, Dr. W. A. Lash, R. M. Sloan, Dr. D. W. C. Benbow, R. T. Gray, Winston Fulton, W. A. Moore, C. P. Stokes, Hon. A. M. Waddell, Hon. J. C. MacRae, D. D. McColl, J. W. Brown, J. M. Odell, G. W. Armfield, J. H. Currie, Hon. Jno. A. Gilmer, Knox Livingston, C. S. McColl.

After the carriages of the family and relatives the procession—comprising nearly a thousand persons in vehicles or marching in a body—was made up of the officers of the banks, officers and employes of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway, organizations from abroad, Guilford Grays, Capt. Gilmer commanding, members of the Chamber of Commerce, citizens.

CHURCH SERVICES.

The faultless decoration of the church interior bore evidence how truly mourning hearts had entered into the work of loving hands, and as the casket passed the threshold it was greeted by the solemn chant from the united choirs of the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches, with Miss Staples as organist. The ritual of burial was followed by the selection, "I Have Read of a Beautiful City," the rich, cultivated voice of Mrs. Hagan leading in solo. After a fervent prayer and the hymn (given by request), "Rock of Ages," Rev. Dr. J. Henry Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and perhaps the most distinguished divine in the North Carolina Synod, delivered the chaste and touching discourse which follows. We have in years listened to nothing more graceful and impressive—a tender supplication for God's healing to wounded hearts, fraught with the inspiration of Christ's love, a solemn and beautiful lesson from the letter and spirit of the Word to sore and burdened christian souls:

The deep and deepening interest and anxiety depicted on almost every face and expressed in every tone of enquiry during the past few days, when it became generally known that Mr. Gray was seriously and alarmingly ill and the deep gloom that settled over all our town, and in almost every home, when it was ascertained that day before yesterday (April 14, 1891) at 6 o'clock P. M., he had ceased to breathe, attested to any stranger, even, that a great calamity—a great public loss—was impending and had fallen upon Greensboro; yes, upon our county and upon our State.

The pastor, on such an occasion as this, is called upon to perform a duty more than usually trying to his own personal feelings, indescribably sad to his heart, and hard to discharge. It is painful at any time to perform such a service, because it always brings us within a circle of sorrowing and weeping kindred, and of bleeding and desolate hearts and homes—but it is especially so, in a case like this, when the whole community feels itself bereaved, and the circle of mourners is the entire population, and each feels a personal bereavement and sorrow, and when, added to this, it is a death that takes one of the pastor's earliest and warmest personal friends, whom he has known and esteemed and loved for thirty years, whose many generous tokens of personal attachment I may not mention, who made confession of his christian faith under my ministry some ten years ago, and, kneeling, received christian baptism at my hands, and whose home was like my own, I mean in the ever warm and cordial greeting and welcome I always received from him:—at such a time and in such a service, I cannot trust myself to say all that I feel, or to give full utterance to my estimate of his worth and of his friendship, and of what I feel that our whole town has lost in his death: were I to do so, my words might seem (only, however, to strangers) extravagant, and yet be inadequate to express my personal feelings of sorrow and loss in his death. I overheard one of our oldest citizens on Sabbath afternoon enquiring of Mr. Gray's condition, and when the reply came that he was extremely, perhaps dangerously, ill, I heard him say: "If Col. Gray dies the key-stone in the arch of Greensboro's enterprise and prosperity will have dropped out." I believe this sentiment expressed the general opinion of our citizens as to his worth and influence in advancing the business enterprises of our town and county and State. And the meeting of yesterday afternoon in the court-house endorsed that utterance with deepest feeling and emphasis, and the silent streets, the closed stores and places of business, the sable tokens of mourning, the countless and beautiful floral testimonials of love and sympathy, and this crowded house to-day, tell to all how deeply bereaved our entire community feels itself to be by this death; for I think it may be said with truth, as one of our daily papers expressed it, "no man ever had more friends, was more universally beloved, or will be more sadly missed than Julius A. Gray."

The papers of yesterday are so full of details of his birth and education, of his energy and liberality, of his foresight, perseverance and public spirit, of his connection with our banks and railroads and other business enterprises, and of the debt of love and gratitude due to him, that I need not do more than thus briefly refer to them:

He was born in Randolph county September 6th, 1833, graduated from Davidson College in 1853, was married in 1858. For the last twenty-two or three years his home has been with us, and closely identified with Greensboro's growth and prosperity. Nearly ten years ago he made public profession of his faith, and was received into the communion of the 1st Presbyterian Church, and was baptized on the 4th of December, 1881.

For the last few days of his illness, such was his weakness and impeded respiration that it was difficult and even hazardous for him to engage in conversation, or to excite him in his extreme feebleness. On Saturday last, however, as I was visiting the family, he expressed a desire to see me and I entered his room. Upon being aroused, he recognized me readily, repeated my name, took my hand and held it nearly all the time of my visit. He was perfectly himself, his voice was feeble but distinct, and he talked more than I feared he ought to do in his weakness and difficult breathing. He expressed over and over a deep sense of his sins and unworthiness, but he avowed his sorrow and repentance, and his trust and hope in the precious and atoning blood of Jesus Christ, on whom, he said, he rested. I repeated different verses of Scripture setting forth the willingness of God to forgive and the safety of all who trusted wholly to Christ. I said: "Do you receive and rest on Jesus alone for salvation?" He whispered distinctly, "I do." And as I repeated stanzas of several hymns, such as "Rock of ages, cleft for me," "Jesus, lover of my soul." "Just as I am without one plea, But that thy blood was shed for me,"—"Can you appropriate them?" said I. He whispered: "I do." I then knelt at his bedside and prayed with and for him, and when I rose I asked him if he could and did join with me in the prayer, and he said he did. As I left him he held my hand for some time, and whispered: "Come again." His increasing weakness was such, however, that I had no subsequent conversation with him.

The death of such a man, in the prime of active life, so much beloved and so useful, so widely known, so highly esteemed, and apparently so indispensable, —a dispensation of divine providence so disappointing, so baffling to our reason, to all our views of what we would consider wisest and best, recalls the words of our Saviour in reply to Peter, when that disciple had expressed his astonishment at and opposition to an act of his Lord and Master, which, in the view of Peter, was inconsistent with his ideas of what was becoming, appropriate and right. To this objection of the disciple the Saviour answered and said: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." Now, my hearers with regard to many things revealed in the word of God, and many more things occurring in the providence of God, just as this, this evening, which has startled and saddened, and confounds all our ideas of what we would have considered wisest and best—we are often at a loss to find a sufficient reason, outside of the Bible, to satisfy perfectly our understandings. "God's thoughts are not as our thoughts,—nor his ways as our ways." "What I do, thou knowest not now." Our wisdom, our duty, our safety is to submit to the superior wisdom of God. The very trial is a test of our faith, a test of our confidence in the divine wisdom, and of our obedient concurrence in the divine will. The man who limits his creed by the extent of his own understanding of what is or of what ought to be—who submits his judgment, and controls and subordinates his feelings only where he can see the reason and end God has in view, does not submit to God at all, but to himself. Such a man's conduct, both as it regards his faith and his practice, does not spring from or evince any confidence in God, but confidence in his own foresight and reason. With regard to many a statement and doctrine of Scripture, to many an event of divine providence, many an affliction, many a cross and many a command, we are utterly unable at the time, frequently never in this life, to see its propriety, wisdom, reasonableness, advantage or necessity—to see or know why it was permitted to occur. We are met in our fruitless endeavors to understand it, to know the why and wherefore of it, by a voice that issues from the thick darkness—but, thank God, it comes from the lips of Jesus: "What I do, thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter;" "Be still, and know that I am God;" "Offer the sacrifices of righteousness, and put your trust in Jehovah."

The secret of the christian's submission and resignation to events and providences that baffle his reason and disappoint his wishes and his earthly hopes—the secret of the christian's assent to truths and doctrines above and beyond his finite reason is not apathy or indifference, it is not ignorance or stolidity, it is not stoicism or philosophy falsely so called, it is not fatalism or blind and iron necessity, it is not the feeling that 'what can't be cured, must be endured." It is different from and superior to all this. It is trust in the character of God. It is submission to the supreme and infinite intelligence. It is the love and confidence of a trusting and affectionate child committing itself to the superior wisdom and infinite love of God our Father in heaven—believing and feeling that, however mysterious and incomprehensible the event or dispensation, it is wise and right and good, because God has so decided it. "What I do thou knowest not now;" "Be still and know that I am God." Trust in me, I am God; trust in me, thou art a child; trust in me, I am thy father.

"Parent and Husband, Guard and Guide,
Thou art each tender name in one;
On Thee we cast our heavy cares,
And comfort seek from Thee alone.

Our Father God, to Thee we look,
Our Rock, our Portion and our Friend,
And on Thy covenant love and truth
Our sinking souls shall still depend."

This, my hearers, is the simple secret and source of true christian resignation and peace. Here and here only are the fountains and springs of comfort, strength and peace for the afflicted child of God in every exigency of fear, and danger, and suffering. The Bible doctrine of God as Jehovah, his character and his relations to his people, his mercy and love and grace, is ever exhibited as our only and, at the same time, our all sufficient source of comfort and consolation. In this, the true religion, the Bible is preeminently peculiar and alone. Witness such passages as these: "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want;" "Call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me;" "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee;" "As a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him; for He knoweth our frame. He remembereth that we are dust;" "Is any among you afflicted? let him pray;" "In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence, and His children shall have a place of refuge;" "Whoso putteth his trust in the Lord, shall be safe;" "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and He shall sustain thee;" "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble;" "Thou art our strong habitation, whereunto we may continually resort;" "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest;" "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter;" "Be still and know that I am God."

"We know not now, why, homeward slowly toiling,
Darker and drearier grows the upward way;
The thick clouds round us every effort foiling,
To look beyond them for a brighter day;

We know not now, why, when some balmed blessing,
Dearer than life is lent us for a while,
And we that treasure to our hearts are pressing,
It fades and earth no more reflects its smile;

We know not now, why, He the Lord who loves us,
The Master, whom, though yet unseen, we love,
Thus in so many ways so sorely proves us,
Ere yet he brings us to his home above;

We know not now, why, toward that home advancing,
Our weary steps through arid wastes are led,
Or through dark valleys where no sunbeam's glancing
Sheds light and gladness on the pilgrim's head.

We know not now—but we shall know hereafter;
Oh! is there not upon the darkest cloud,
Written in light—this promise of our Master,
Though thickest gloom may all things else enshroud?

Hereafter we shall know; when toils are over,
And grief and pain among the things that were,
Over life's long way shall memory softly hover,
And in our spirits glad surprise shall stir.

We shall know then, by life's clear stream reclining,
Communing with some loved one of the past,
Recalling hours when we in grief were pining—
Or basking in a ray too bright to last.

We shall look back with rapture on our sadness,
On every dark path we were called to tread;
And strike our harps to higher notes of gladness,
That we by rough and thorny ways were led.

And shall we not e'en now, when griefs assail us,
And none are near to counsel or to aid,
Shall we not trust in Him, who ne'er will fail us,
Look onward, upward and not be afraid?

The glad "hereafter" as we are known, knowing,
Through a glass darkly seeing—then, no more,
Ever in wisdom and in knowledge growing,
Daily and hourly gaining Heaven's blest lore.

No weary brain or fevered pulse to stay us—
Naught to impede the spirit's rapturous flight;
Will not that joy for every toil repay us?
One hour of heaven outweighs earth's longest night!

Let us be strong. Oh! who would not bear meekly,
Nay! gladly bear the cross to win the crown!
Let us not sink beneath life's burden weakly,
Till suffered by our Lord to lay it down."

"What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter;" "Be still, and know that I am God."

AT THE CEMETERY.

From the church (whence the President, teachers and pupils of Greensboro Female College also attended in a body to the grave) the procession moved to Greene Hill Cemetery for the concluding services.

How fair the streets and ways of this "silent city;" yea, how peaceful its narrow house in which he is laid to rest—overlooking that beautiful, bustling city which had thrilled and pulsated under the energizing stir of his busy brain, which had bounded forward in ever-widening channels of progress and development under his directing and helpful hand! The belted soldier, keeping guard from his granite pedestal but a few steps away, has in watch and ward the abiding-place of no truer, tenderer, braver heart. Rest thee!

FLORAL TRIBUTES.

Not until the great concourse assembled about the grave had in a measure dispersed was it possible to appreciate fully the remarkable beauty and profusion of the offerings of flowers from friends at home and in different parts of the State. The designs were very elaborate and tasteful, embracing artistic and emblematic devices, bouquets and wreaths, of which the following were most striking:

Engine and tender of white immortelles from railroad employes at Fayetteville; crown and wreath of roses from railroad officers at Fayetteville; cushion of white flowers, with "Our President" in purple immortelles, from the railroad office at Greensboro; crown of pure white roses from railroad employes and the steamer Compton at Wilmington; "Gates Ajar" of Marechal Niel roses and smilax from the officers of the Greensboro National Bank; cushion of hyacinths and immortelles from Greensboro Female College; bouquets from the Chamber of Commerce and the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Greensboro; lyre of calla lilies and Marechal Niel roses from Richmond, Va.; shaft of white Ascension lilies, surmounted by a snowy dove, from Durham; lovely wreath of white azaleas, with other wreaths, exquisite bouquet of violets, cross and harp from Fayetteville; tasteful bouquet from the faithful porter of President Gray's private car; star, sickle, anchor of bridal roses, pillow of violets, crosses and cut flowers innumerable from sympathizing friends at different points in North Carolina.

DIRECTORS' MEETING.

At 5 o'clock, before the departure of the special train to Fayetteville, a meeting of the Directors of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company was held, at which the following resolutions were submitted by Mr. R. T. Gray, accompanied by remarks of such fervor and eloquence as showed the deep feeling with which he presented them:

WHEREAS: JULIUS A. GRAY, President of the C. F. & Y. V. Railway Company has departed this life, and we, the Directors of said Company, desire to place upon record an expression of our esteem and sense of loss, therefore be it Resolved, 1st. That by the death of Julius A. Gray this Company has been deprived of a President who was not only in name but in fact the executive head and genius of its operations; the one whose brain conceived and whose patriotism, wisdom, tact and energy perfected the plans and accomplished the task of building the Company's road—the only truly North Carolina system—from the sea to the mountains; a President who was faithful to every trust, watchful of every interest and met every responsibility with intelligence, courage and skill. He more than redeemed every promise made to the people of the State in connection with the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway; and, though he has not lived to see the full fruition of his enlarged plans concerning the connection of the system with the great western systems of railways, yet it has been granted him to see it assured and within reach, and to experience the satisfaction which the great law-giver and leader felt when from Nebo's heights he viewed the fair land that had been promised to his people.

2nd. That the State has lost one of its most patriotic and devoted sons, who was ever anxious to promote its prosperity and to develop its resources, and no citizen of the State has been more lavish with his money and intelligent application of his energies in this direction than Mr. Gray. He combined, in rare symmetry, the qualities that ennoble and dignify a man. In form, feature and manner he was attractive and impressive; in council, wise; in judgment, accurate; in business, diligent; in leadership, brave and aggressive; undismayed by obstacles; calm and self-poised in the face of danger; kind and sympathetic in disposition, considerate of the feelings of others, courteous to all of every station and degree in life, charitable to the poor and erring, true to his friends, loyal to his word, clean-handed, honest and honorable.

3rd. That in respect to the memory of our deceased President the office-buildings and locomotives of the Company be draped with the emblems of mourning for the next thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased and be published in the newspapers on the line of the Company's road.

At the proper time fitting resolutions had been passed by the citizens' meeting, the Chamber of Commerce, the Guilford Grays and the Continentals.

La Grippe Again.

During the epidemic of La Grippe last season Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds proved to be the best remedy. Reports from the many who used it confirm this statement. They were not only quickly relieved but the disease left no bad after results. We ask you to give this remedy a trial, and we guarantee that you will be satisfied with results, or the purchase price will be refunded. It has no equal in La Grippe, or any Throat, Chest or Lung Trouble. Trial bottles free at B E. Sedberry & Son's Drug Store. Large bottles, 50c. and $1 00.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine; made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies. He found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle, at B. E. Sedberry & Son's Drug Store.

A BOON TO THE SICK.

Dr. King's Royal Germetuer is endorsed by Rev. J. B. Hawthorne, pastor First Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga., who says: "It is a great remedy." Rev. Sam P. Jones says: "I wish every poor suffering wife had access to that medicine." Thousands of others attest its virtues. Fifty gallons are drunk in Atlanta daily, where it is performing remarkable cures. It removes the cause of disease and builds up from the first dose. Send stamp for full particulars, certificates of wonderful cures, etc., to King's Royal Germetuer Co., Atlanta, Ga. IT CURES WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS. Price, $1.50 per concentrated bottle, which makes one gallon of medicine as per directions accompanying each bottle. Can be sent by express C. O. D. if your druggist cannot supply you.

A Native "Tar Heel" Dies in the "Lone Star" State.

Maj. E. J. Hale, who is at present in New Orleans, kindly furnishes to us the following announcement of the death of Col. Hugh Ochiltree (of which mention was made last week), clipped from the New Orleans Delta of the 12th inst.:

Colonel Hugh Ochiltree, an old-time merchant of Orange, Tex., was laid to rest in the cemetery on Easter Sunday morning. The funeral, the largest that has ever been witnessed there, was led by the local Masonic order, Colonel Ochiltree being the founder of Masonry in Orange and a high priest of the order for twenty-odd years. Colonel Ochiltree was born in Fayetteville, N. C., on July 10, 1820, and went to Texas in "49," locating first at San Augustine in mercantile pursuits, moving from there to Sabine Pass, and thence to Orange, where he remained till his death. He first went to Alabama from North Carolina, and from there went to Texas while yet quite a boy, on horseback, accompanying Colonel Wm. Ochiltree (the redoubtable Colonel Tom Ochiltree's father), and carrying Colonel Tom nearly all the way behind him on his horse. Colonel Ochiltree figured prominently in the late Mexican war, especially so in the battles of Monterey and San Jacinto. He was a man of unusual nerve. Colonel Ochiltree has been twice married two daughters by his first marriage surviving him. His second union was with Miss Josephine Shaw, who with six children, all grown, and a host of friends are left to mourn his irreparable loss.

Fayetteville & Albemarle Railroad.

For the Observer.]

MESSRS. EDS:—Can the people of Fayetteville afford to let the great opportunity to build this road pass, and be lost to us forever? A distance of about twenty miles of grading will put the road-bed to Aberdeen, and there place it in connection with the "West End" or Page road, which is now running up into Montgomery county, and reaching out still farther. This road would restore to Fayetteville all the trade, now lost to it, that came from Moore, Montgomery and Stanly counties—the people of which are anxious to return to their first love, and renew the business acquaintance with the merchants of this town.

The route has been surveyed, and shows that NO BRIDGES and very little trestle-work will be necessary, while the road-bed can be constructed at less expense than that of a large majority of those now being built, for the reason that it will run through a very level section of country, and one which has not been traversed by any road, nor "paralleled," and would have no competing line for thirty miles on either side.

This road, it is estimated, can be graded to Aberdeen (Blue's Crossing) at the outside cost of $20,000, which, being done, there would be little trouble in procuring the iron and equipment—indeed, offers have already been made to iron and operate the road when the grading is completed.

A road is now being projected from Red Springs to Aberdeen, and another from Lumberton, via Red Springs, with some point at or near Aberdeen as the objective point of both. Can the people of Fayetteville allow, or afford, either of these roads to be built, and the teritory we so much need to be thus occupied? It would be a deadly blow at the commercial prosperity of our town, and one that we can scarcely ever recover from. Any plan to thus "cut us off" can be frustrated or forestalled by grading the Fayetteville & Albemarle R. R. to Aberdeen.

What, then, is to be done?

The question is not so much whether we ought to move in this matter, as it is can we afford not to act, and act at once?

Twenty thousand dollars of bonds, at six per cent. for twenty years, with a sinking fund of one thousand dollars each year, would do the work at such a nominal increase of taxation as scarcely to be felt by the tax-payer.

Let the township vote the tax as the Mt. Airy township people did to secure the extension of the C. F. & Y. V. R. R., and let us move in this all-important matter at once, before we lose the opportunity and it is too late, and we have a lifetime to repent over the lost opportunity, as it was with us by the plank-road business, while we were being ruinously "cut-off" by railroads all around and about us.

Time is passing, the opportunity is present; let us improve it by present energetic movement in this matter of such great moment to our people.

A word to the wise.

Immigration Convention.

The following call by Gov. Thos. M. Holt has been sent out to all parts of the State:

EX. DEP'T., STATE OF N. C.
Raleigh, April 17th, 1891.

In accordance with the expressed desire of the Southern Inter-State Immigration Convention, held in Asheville, N. C., in December last, and in compliance with the will of a large number of leading citizens from each section of the State, I hereby call a convention of all those interested in the upbuilding of North Carolina to assemble in the city of Raleigh on the 13th day of May, at 5 P. M., in the Commons Hall of the State. The object of the convention is to secure a united effort on the part of the citizens of North Carolina to cooperate with the Southern Inter-States Immigration Bureau in developing the natural advantages and making known the great opportunities offered to capitalists, manufacturers, and to the honest, law-abiding people who desire to secure homes in a genial climate, among a hospitable, moral and Christian people.

(signed) THOS. M. HOLT,
Governor.

A Heavy Gold Coin Order.

NEW YORK, April 17.—Wilder, Peabody & Co. have ordered $500,000 of gold coin for export to the Europe.

GUBERNATORIAL HISTORY.

Governors, Governors Ex Officio and Lieutenant-Governors since 1861—The History of a Quarter of a Century.

Maj. W. A. Hearne in Winston Daily.]

The executive office is not usually regarded a very fatal one, its occupants generally enjoying length of days.

Within our recollection three Governors have died in office: Governor Ellis, July 1861, Governor Caldwell, July 1874, and Governor Fowle, April 1891, all within a period of thirty years.

Governor Ellis died of consumption, Governor Caldwell of Bright's disease, and Governor Fowle of fatty degeneration of the heart. Labors and exposures of campaigning undoubtedly hastened the death of each.

There is a good list of survivors of the office: Governor Reid, 1851-'54; Holden, 1865 and 1868-'70; Brogden, 1874-'77; Vance, 1862-'65, 1877-'79; Jarvis, 1879-'85; Scales, 1885-'89.

Governor Reid was elected to the United States Senate in November, 1854, and Hon. Warren Winslow, Speaker of the Senate, succeeded to the office as Governor, ex officio, for the balance of the term, one month.

Governor Holden was impeached, removed from office, and went to Washington as administration editor of the Daily Chronicle. Returning home, President Grant appointed him Postmaster at Raleigh, and he held the office eight years.

Governor Brogden was elected to Congress during his term as Governor, served two years, and retired in 1879 to his farm in Wayne, after forty-one years of almost continuous public life, where he now is.

Governor Vance was elected to the U. S. Senate in the middle of his term, January, 1879, and has achieved there about the greatest distinction on the floor ever won by a Senator from North Carolina.

Governor Jarvis went from the executive office as United States Minister to Brazil, and returned home to the practice of the law at Greenville.

Governor Scales, on retiring, went into the banking business at Greensboro, where he is in the enjoyment of health and a prosperous, hard-working life.

Governor Reid first entered public life in 1835, serving five years in the legislature, and four years in Congress, before 1848. He is now seventy-eight years old, and very infirm at Wentworth, his old home; and Governor Holden is very feeble from age and two strokes of paralysis.

Not only does the office appear to be favorable to longevity, but of the six surviving ex governors all but Governor Scales have held other public office, and, for that matter, no one knows what still awaits him.

GOVERNORS EX OFFICIO.

In the history of the State there have been but two Governors ex officio: Hon. Warren Winslow, in 1854, and Hon. Henry T. Clark, in 1861-'62.

Under the constitution of the State at that date the Speaker of the Senate became ex officio Governor on the death, resignation or disability of the Governor, and held for the balance of the term.

In 1854, when Governor Reid resigned to accept a seat in the United States Senate, Hon. Warren Winslow, Speaker of the Senate, became the Governor ex officio for the balance of the term of one month, when Governor Bragg was inaugurated.

In 1861, on the death of Governor Ellis, Hon. Henry T. Clark, Speaker of the Senate, became ex officio Governor for the term ending January 1, 1863, but on the election of Governor Vance, August, 1862, Governor Clark requested the Convention to pass an ordinance providing for the immediate installation of his successor, which was done.

In those days the Governor ex officio was required to preside over the sessions of the Senate at the same time he was acting Governor, and he signed all official executive papers "Speaker of the Senate, Governor ex officio."

LIEUTENANT GOVERNORS.

Of the six Lieutenant Governors chosen since the office was established in 1868, four, Messrs. Brogden, Jarvis, Stedman and Holt, are alive, and three of these have filled the office of Governor. Caldwell, the first chosen under the new constitution, died after he had served his term and been elected Governor. Robinson died after his term of office had expired, had served again in the House of Representatives, and was in service as an Indian special agent under Cleveland. Every Lieutenant Governor had further service save Stedman. The Lieutenant Governorship is a good stepping-stone, but gubernatorial aspirants have been known to loftily decline it, both Coke and Alexander indignantly refusing to accept the nomination at the hands of conventions which had defeated them for the higher office.

The First White Rebuplican Meeting in South Carolina.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 16.—A very significant political meeting was held at the State capital to-day. It is the first white Republican meeting ever held in the State, and is said to be largely the outgrowth of the Alliance wave which swept over this State last year. The significance of the meeting was the presence for the first time of quite a number of leading white citizens who had heretofore been associated with the straight-out Democratic party. Among these were Dr. Bowen, Mr. Hannam, of Spartanburg; James Hunter, of Union; Dr. Monroe, of Union, and others. Fifty-one clubs were represented. The meeting elected delegates to the Republican League convention, which meets at Cincinnati on the 21st.

This movement is regarded with some concern here, taken as it is in consideration of the repeated declaration of the Alliance in favor of a third party. The white Democrats who are in it say that the old Democratic party has been elbowed out of existence by the farmers' movement, and, as they will not subscribe to the platform and principles of that movement, they will go into the Republican party. There are so many Democrats in this State who are disgusted with the Tillman administration that there is some danger of the move developing into a stampede from the Democratic party as it exists in this State at present.

University Trustees in Session.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 18, 1891.—The trustees of the State University met here this afternoon, Governor Holt presiding. Resolutions regarding the death of Governor Fowle and Secretary of State Saunders were presented by a committee and adopted.

A committee was appointed to invest all the permanent funds of the University, including the $33,000 recently raised for the Chair of History.

A Desperate Cyclone.

MARION, Ind., April 18.—A heavy wind-storm struck the northern part of this city last evening, crushing the Crosby paper-mill, besides overturning and unroofing a number of other buildings. No fatalities are reported, though many persons are injured.

THE DURHAM CONSOLIDATED
Land and Improvement Co.
DURHAM, N. C.

J. S. CARR, President. A. B. ANDREWS, Vice-President. R. H. WRIGHT, Sec'y and Treasurer.

A MOST LIBERAL and REMARKABLE ANNOUNCEMENT.

The "Consolidated" Controls
285 ACRES of Land immediately adjoining The Campus of Trinity College, which has been surveyed into LOTS 50 BY 140 FEET.
The Lots are well located and are situated upon Streets 60 Feet Wide with a Rear Alley of 20 Feet.

The location is admirable for Stores, Restaurants and Dwellings. Persons desiring to "buy or build," in order to educate their boys can do no better than buy one or more of these lots.

IT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE CONSOLIDATED TO OFFER, for the present only.
800 OF THESE LOTS,
and to guarantee that when the 800 Lots are sold, to erect upon some suitable portion of the property, sufficiently far removed from the residential portion, one modernly-built, well-equipped Cotton Factory, to cost $100,000, and to supply the Cotton Factory with a CASH WORKING CAPITAL of $25,000, making total outlay for COTTON FACTORY, $125,000
One Knitting Mill for the manufacture of Hosiery, Underwear, &c., to cost $50,000, and to supply the Knitting Mill with a CASH WORKING CAPITAL of $25,000, making total outlay for
KNITTING MILL, $75,000
A GRAND TOTAL OF
$200,000 IN IMPROVEMENTS
in the line of Industrial Enterprises upon the property.

TO EVERY PURCHASER
of $400 of this magnificent property, the "CONSOLIDATED" will Present { FIVE SHARES, PAR VALUE $25 PER SHARE, full paid and non-assessable in the Cotton Factory, and $125
THREE SHARES, PAR VALUE $25 PER SHARE, full paid and non-assessable in the Knitting Mill, $75 } $200

Making a return to each Purchaser of $400 of the Property, of $200, well invested in Good Industrial Enterprises.

For every dollar invested in West End Town Lots, adjoining the Trinity College property, the purchaser realizes 50 per cent. in First-Class Industrial Enterprises, which will enhance the value of his investment.

The "CONSOLIDATED" confidently believes that the above is the most liberal and at the same time the most legitimate offer that has come before the public. In fact the offer is so liberal that we do not hesitate to say that in our opinion, the opportunity will be promptly taken advantage of by those who have been waiting for the BEST, or persons desiring to secure first-class educational advantages for their Boys, on the most advantageous terms.

Maps showing the property and Price List of the lots cheerfully furnished on application to R. H. WRIGHT, Secretary, DURHAM, N. C.

REMEMBER
that every purchase of $400 carries eight shares of Stock in two well Equipped Industrial Enterprises par value of $200.

A POINTER.
In buying a lot you are also making an Investment, the Dividends upon which will most likely aid materially to educate your boys.

A HINT.
The building of two large Industries upon the Property, and the completion of Trinity College ought largely to enhance the value of the lots.

A SUGGESTION.
Now is the time to purchase. The lots may all be gone if you wait, and you will miss the opportunity of buying from first hands.

TOUCHING TRIBUTES OF RESPECT.

Officers and Employes of Railroad in Meeting.—Eloquent Address of Hon. G. M. Rose.—Resolutions of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

On Wednesday last all the offices of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway were suitably draped with the habiliments of mourning for the road's lamented President, and at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, in the rooms of the General Freight and Passenger Agent, a large meeting of the officials and employes of the company was called to order, with Mr. Jno. M. Rose in the chair, and Mr. R. W. Bidgood acting as Secretary. A committee—consisting of Hon. Geo. M. Rose and Messrs. W. E. Kyle and I. W. Clark—was appointed, which submitted the following resolutions:

WHEREAS: The officers and employes of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company resident in Fayetteville, N. C., in meeting assembled, desire to express their deep sense of the affliction that has fallen upon them and the State in the death of Julius A. Gray, for so many years president of this company, and their high appreciation of his eminent services in the discharge of his duties as their chief executive officer; therefore

Resolved, That in his death the State of North Carolina has lost a worthy and faithful citizen, whose zeal for her welfare and whose patriotism has prompted and enabled him to do a great work for the upbuilding of her institutions and the development of her material interest, and that the railway company of which he was the honored head has lost a faithful and able executive whose financial skill, business ability and tireless energy have, in the completion of a great system of railroad, erected a monument to his memory that will ever be a source of pride to his friends and the State.

Resolved, That we, his immediate associates and employes, have lost a true and earnest friend, whose counsel and advice we always prized and whose friendship we always returned, and we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his friends in this the time of their great grief and sorrow, claiming the privilege of sharing with them in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, and that the chairman of this meeting present the same to the board of directors of the company, with the request that they be spread upon the minutes of the company as a memorial of our high esteem for his eminent services to the company and our great respect for the man.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the Fayetteville, Greensboro and Wilmington papers.

Mr. Rose, in presenting these resolutions, spoke eloquently and feelingly the sentiments of a full heart, and expressed with grace and thrilling effect his estimate of the character of the distinguished dead. All around him were the manifestations of profoundly touched hearts as he addressed the meeting in the following impassioned words:

I do not know, Mr. Chairman, that I can add anything to the resolutions just offered. There are times when, in the presence of some great sorrow, words—mere, empty words—seem but a mockery. There are times in our lives when the emotions of our hearts can best be expressed by absolute silence; but I feel that I should be recreant to every sense of feeling and duty did I fail to pay a feeble tribute to the memory of a friend I loved, and wreathe an osier round his grave.

We have all met with a serious loss in the death of Mr. Gray. The State of North Carolina, whose son he was, has lost a faithful, devoted citizen and an earnest worker for her progress. In everything that pertained to her advancement, in everything affecting her prosperity and her honor, he was at all times and on all occasions willing and anxious to do his part, and more than assume his portion of the work. For years identified with her works of internal improvement, in more ways than one has he shown his zeal for her progress and his devotion to her institutions. Unflagging in his zeal, strong and ardent in his devotion, proud of her success, able, willing and liberal, his State, his county and his town will sadly miss his wise counsel and his progressive energy.

The Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company has sustained an almost irreparable loss. Where can we fill his place? on every side the question is asked. Where can any one be found to bear the burdens he has borne, to assume the work he has laid down, and to carry out to a complete and final success the great plans he has laid out?

But a decade ago he took control of this road, then a short line of but 42 miles, commencing at Fayetteville, without connections and stopping in the woods, without credit, impoverished and in debt; but, by his indomitable will, his tireless energy, his financial skill and his faultless judgment, he has builded a great system, extending transversly across North Carolina from the seaboard to the mountains—a North Carolina road in truth and in fact—building up our own waste places, revivifying our own territory, and putting new life into our own people—so that now the "iron horse" in the early morning can shake from his mane the dews of "old ocean's" breath, and, coursing with increasing speed across hill and dale, extended plain and forest stream, when the shadows fall can bathe his tired feet in gurgling brooks that flow at the base of our western mountains:—truly a monument to his memory more lasting than marble column or adamantine shaft. And we, his associates and employes, have lost a faithful friend. Who among us, who now within the sound of my voice, but feels that one is gone out from us whose hearty hand-shake, whose genial smile and pleasant word will be sadly missed?

Always attractive, always polite, in a word, always a true and noble gentleman, he had a kindly word and a heartby hand-shake for each and all. It has been my fortune, Mr. Chairman, for the past eight years to be intimately associated with Col. Gray; as you know, during that time I have been his legal adviser. I have seen him under all circumstances and conditions—in legislative hall, in private counsel and in the public assemblies; I have seen him when the clouds of doubt and perplexity overhung him, almost overpowering him and crushing out his manliest hope; I have seen him when the cloud has lifted and the glad sunshine of prosperity blazed upon him; and, under all circumstances, all conditions—shade or shadow, hope or joy, cloud or sunshine—he was the same true, earnest, noble-hearted gentleman.

But, Mr. Chairman, he is gone. But a few short weeks ago he was among us in the pride and strength of a vigorous manhood, performing the duties and discharging the functions devolving upon him as president of this company. To-day he lies still and cold in the silence of death. To-morrow we will commit his body to the grave: "earth to earth, dust to dust, ashes to ashes;" but, thank God, his spirit has gone to the home whence it came, and we can express the hope that it has had a glad reunion with that of his lovely daughter, who but a little time since was transplanted to the skies. Yes, he has left us, but his memory is left behind; and when we are willing to forget that our truest thing is a true life, and are ready to blot out from the pages of our lives those upon which are written the names of our best, our noblest and our truest friends, then, and not till then, will we forget the memory of Julius A. Gray.

BROTHERHOOD OF LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS.

At a regular meeting of Cape Fear Division, No. 457, B. of L. E., held at Fayetteville April 19th, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS: It has pleased the Almighty to remove from our midst our much-respected and highly-esteemed President. JULIUS A. GRAY, who, after a brief illness, died in Greenbore April 14th, 1891; therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of President Gray we have lost one of our noblest and truest friends, society an honored and esteemed man, and his family a true and devoted husband and father.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the bereaved wife and children, as also the entire family and friends of our departed President, and we recommend them to the care and protection of Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our order, and a copy be sent to the bereaved family of the deceased and published in the Fayetteville and Greensboro papers.

Fayetteville Presbytery.

From Rev. T. P. Barclay and Capt. S. C. Rankin, of this place, who attended Fayetteville Presbytery at Laurel Hill a few days since, we get some interesting points.

Presbytery met promptly at the above-named place at 11 o'clock, and was opened with a sermon by Rev. C. Moore, the retiring Moderator, at the conclusion of which Hon. Alfred Rowland, of Robeson, was elected Moderator, and Rev. J. S. Black, of St. Paul's, and Ruling Elder Dalrymple, of Jonesboro, temporary clerks.

The attendance of delegates was quite full, with preaching every day and night. The people of the surrounding country demonstrated their interest in the work by their presence in great numbers.

Presbyterial Evangelist, Rev. A. R. Shaw, submitted his report on the first three months of his work, which showed large accessions to the various churches where he had labored and liberal collections to the evangelistic fund.

The collections for foreign missions within the bounds of the Presbytery amounted to over $4,000—considerably more than ever before reported, we are told, for any one year.

On Friday the hour usually devoted to the sermon was filled up with able and entertaining addresses by Revs. David Fairley, D. D. McBryde, Jos. Evans and T. P. Barclay and Dr. H. G. Hill. At the conclusion of these addresses a liberal collection was taken up for foreign missions. On Saturday and Sunday the preaching by Revs. David Fairley and D. D. McBryde was fine, and the capacity of the church taxed to the utmost to accommodate the great crowd.

One candidate was licensed—Rev. Mr. Shields, from Moore county—whose examination and trial-sermon showed him to be a young man of ability and a bright future. A call was then placed in his hands from several churches in Moore county, which, we understand, he accepted. He will, therefore, enter immediately upon his pastoral work in his native county.

Rev. T. P. Barclay and Ruling Elder Rankin, of Fayetteville, were elected Commissioners to the General Assembly, which meets this year at Birmingham, Ala. The fall meeting of Presbytery will be held in the Presbyterian Church at Dunn in October.

All in all, this meeting of Presbytery was one to be remembered.

Visit of the Bishop.

Rt. Rev. A. A. Watson, D. D., Bishop of East Carolina, will visit the parishes in Cumberland county on Saturday and Sunday next, April 25th and 26th, to perform the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation. The services will be as follows:

Christ Church, Hope Mills, Saturday, April 25th, at 8 P. M.

St. John's Church, Fayetteville, Sunday, April 26th, at 11 A. M.

St. Thomas's Church, Cumberland county, Sunday, April 26th, at 4 P. M.

St. Joseph's Church, Fayetteville, Sunday, April 26th, at 8 P. M.

Fayetteville Choral Association.

The members of the Fayetteville Choral Association—too generous to reserve all their delights for the great assemblage at Charlotte—will dispense a small portion of their favors among their own home friends and admirers, and design giving a concert in Williams Hall on Friday evening of next week, May 1st. To indulge in praise of such talent would be as superfluous as to remark that Orpheus picked a good tune on his lute, but we will speak of the contemplated performance more in detail in the next issue.

To the Veterans of Cumberland County.

Comrades:

The ladies of the Cumberland County Memorial Association have honored me with the appointment of Chief Marshal of the Memorial day exercises; and, through me, extend to you an invitation, with an earnest request that you be represented in the procession in greater numbers on that occasion that ever before. Memorial day, the 10th, falling on Sunday this year, Monday, the 11th, will be observed, and the exercises will be unusually interesting. Your old friend and comrade, that true and tried veteran, Maj. T. D. Love, of Wilmington, N. C., will address you, and I bespeak for him a goodly audience of the soldiers of the "Lost Cause." The ladies, to whom we are so greatly indebted for the commemoration of the deeds of our dead heroes, expect you, and this alone should insure a large representation and full ranks. We all want your presence, and I feel sure you can be "counted on."

JOHN H. ROBINSON,
Chief Marshal.

Personal Pencilings.

B. F. McLean, Esq., Mayor of Maxton, was here Tuesday.

Prof. Scott has returned from a visit to Atlanta and other Southern cities.

Mr. J. B. Underwood left Tuesday for Winston, to be absent a few days.

Miss Georgia Worth left Tuesday for a brief visit to Miss Olivia Deming in Philadelphia.

Messrs. H. C. Raneke and R. C. Lewis, of Lumberton, N. C., are spending a few days in the city.

Mr. A. J. Cook left Monday night for Raleigh to attend the bed-side of Dr. J. R. Pearsall, who is quite ill there.

Mr. Phillips, editor of the Jonesboro Leader, paid the city a visit last week. The Leader is young but lusty, vigorous and growing.

Rev. R. P. Pell acceptably occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning. We are glad to know that Mr. and Mrs. Pell will probably make their future residence here.

Mrs. R. B. Grinnan (nee Miss Lena Leete) will in a few days remove from Kochi Tosa to Kobe, Japan. This change is made on account of her health, which, we regret to know, has latterly been delicate.

Mr. W. W. McDiarmid, of the Robesonian, was in town last week. The prosperity of his excellent paper is reflected on his genial countenance, and reechoes in every tone of his low, soft, musical laugh.

Mr. E. W. O'Hanlon, of this city, who recently graduated at the Baltimore College of Pharmacy, has accepted a position with the popular and well-known Smith Drug Company, of Winston. Mr. O'Hanlon is a young man of sterling qualities, a pharmacist of considerable experience, and carries with him the best wishes of a host of friends.

A Deplorable Affair.

The people of Hope Mills are very much stirred up and indignant over the attempt of one of the "trusty" convicts to commit a criminal assault on a highly respectable white lady in that vicinity. A call for a mass meeting of the citizens to denounce such things as "trusty" convicts and to take such action as the circumstances demand was called for yesterday at 12 o'clock, a report of which we were unable to secure at the hour of going to press.

IT IS TO TEACH THE LADIES.

AN IMPORTATION OF DESIGNERS OF LADIES' GOWNS.

What the Enterprise of An International Fashion Magazine Has Done For Its Readers.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Among the cabin passengers who arrived from Europe to-day by the steamship La Bourgogne, were fourteen Parisian designers of ladies' fashionable gowns. These artists have been engaged by the enterprising managers of THE NEW YORK AND PARIS YOUNG LADIES' FASHION BAZAR to contribute exclusively to the columns of that popular magazine. All of them are well known in New York, for their reputations have preceded them. Mrs. Astor, the Vanderbilts, Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts are among the society leaders who have worn gowns designed by these artists. During an interview with a reporter one of the designers said:

"Paris still leads the world of fashion although Eugenie no longer sits on the throne. Parisian gowns have a style about them that can not be equaled. That, I suppose, is the reason why we have been engaged to come to America to teach the ladies of your beautiful country, through the columns of THE NEW YORK AND PARIS YOUNG LADIES' FASHION BAZAR, how these wonderful creations of the dress-makers' art are constructed. It is our business to design the handsomest and most fashionable gowns for the different seasons of the year. These designs will be printed in colors, and will be accompanied by such clear instructions as to the selection of materials and the cutting and fitting of the garments that no woman of sense will have the least difficulty in making perfect-fitting gowns herself. It is a knack, a science, to fashion a gown that will make a very small and very fleshy lady appear slim. Not one designer out of a thousand can hit upon the true lines unless he makes it the study of a life-time. You ought to see the May number of our Magazine. We have designs in it that will take the hearts of the ladies by storm. They do not get a new dress made up every day, and I can tell you it is an important item to get the best magazine, and the very latest and most exquisite Paris styles, and have it fashioned like the one that is best suited to their figure."

is recommended by physicians because they see its healthy effects all around them.

A leading physician in New York, and director of one of the large hospitals, says, February 8, 1890, he has made use of the P. P. P. sent him, and was pleased to say P. P. P. proved efficacious in a number of cases, and adds, it is no more than he should have anticipated from the satisfactory combination of such well known drugs.

A prominent railway superintendent of Savannah (name given on application) says he was crippled by a disease in legs and arms, powerless to walk or eat without assistance, having lost the use of his limbs by rheumatism, malaria, dyspepsia, etc. Physicians here sent him to New York and they returned him here, and he was as complete a wreck as one could be and live. A course of P. P. P. has made him a well man.

P. P. P. is known among physicians in the South for its various and wonderful cures as the great blood purifier of the age.

Blood Poison

Primary, Secondary and Tertiary Syphilis, old sores, pimples, blotches, scrofula, blood and mercurial poison and skin diseases are eradicated by the use of P. P. P. Hosts of certificates are in office to show the cures in these diseases where all other medicines have failed.

Rheumatism

Inflammatory, gout, sciatic and its kindred diseases with their excruciating pains are cured by the wonderful blood-cleansing properties of P. P. P (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium).

Catarrh

Originates in scrofulous taint. P. P. P. purifies the blood, and this prevents catarrh.

For Old Sores, Skin Eruptions, Pimples, Ulcers and Syphilis, use only P. P. P., and get well and enjoy the blessing only to be derived from the use of P. P. P (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium).

In the matter of the Receivership of the People's National Bank of Fayetteville, N. C.

To all whom it may concern:

Whereas, William G. LeDuc, Receiver of said Bank, has filed his petition in this Court praying for leave to compromise, compound or sell any or all of the indebtedness due said Bank, as classified under the heads of "doubtful or "worthless" in the schedule filed by him in the office of the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington D. C., in such manner as he shall find to be for the best interests of his trust.

Now, therefore, it is ordered by the Court, that such petition be heard in New Berne, at Chambers, on the 27th day of April, inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., or as soon thereafter as it can be heard, and that notice thereof shall be given in the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER, at least ten days before the hearing, to all creditors and stockholders of said Bank and other persons interested to appear and show cause if any they have, at such time and place, why an order should not be passed by the Court upon the petition authorizing such act or acts on the part of the Receiver.

IF I COULD ONLY ——

Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you.—1. Peter v: 7.

If I could only know
That all these things that tire me so
Were noticed by my Lord—
One pang that cuts me like a knife,
The noise, the weariness, the strife—
What peace it would afford!

It seems to me, if sure of this,
Blent with each ill would come such bliss
That I might covet faith,
And deem whatever brought to me
The loving thought of Deity,
And sense of Christ's sweet sympathy,
Not loss, but richest gain.

Dear Lord, my heart shall no more doubt
That thou doth compass me about
With sympathy divine.
Thy love for me, O Crucified,
Is not the love to leave my side,
But waiteth ever to divide
Each smallest care of mine.

CAUGHT.

They were sitting by the fireside,
On a very frosty night,
And their heads were close together
As they talked of—well—the weather,
Or, perhaps, the "Injun" fight.

As their chat grew more engrossing
Near and nearer yet he drew,
Till her fair hair brushed his shoulder,
And in trembling voice he told her
Of the—sorrows of the Sioux.

Then he put his arms about her
In the dimly-lighted room,
And they saw naught but each other;
Never heard her bad small brother
Stealing softly through the gloom,

Till a flash dispelled the darkness,
And a shrill voice cried with glee;
"Caught your photo—you and sister—
Pa will like to know you kissed her—
Buy the negative from me?"

A Few More Words to Farmers.

Carolina Spartan.]

The farmers of the Piedmont section enter on their April work with the poorest prospects they have had in several years. So far as preparation of land is concerned, it is the most unpromising outlook they have had since the war. As to old debts for supplies, few of them are burdening our people. As a general thing, they have more money than usual. But still the prospect is rather gloomy. Here we are, the 8th of April, with little corn planted, a small portion of the cotton ground prepared, a very light wheat and oat crop sown, and the spring very backward. But earnest, industrious men should not give up. Let their energies be redoubled. Special attention must be given to the two main crops. So far as possible, one should provide against the effects of drought or continued rains.

There should be two plantings of corn: one early, the other late. If the first should fail, the second might come in all right. Proper distance should be given, so that a few dry days would not damage the crop. Owing to the cold, late spring, farmers should not plant their cotton seed the first warm day. It is probable that we may have some frosty mornings after this. Early-planted cotton generally comes up with the grass, or little after it, and is very difficult to get clean. That which is planted about the first of May on freshly prepared land always saves one working. It will be much better to cut down the average a little so that the crops may be pushed by frequent cultivation.

If a one-horse farmer has made up his mind to plant 20 acres in cotton, 10 in corn and 3 in other crops, let him plant 15 acres in cotton, 10 in corn and 2 in potatoes, sorghum and the like. Let there be a reduction of from 5 to 7 acres to the horse. Leave out the thinnest land, and increase the manure on the portion cultivated. Prepare land first that hardens easily after a few dry days. Plant the open, live land first, leaving the cold, stiff, compact soils for the last planting. There is no use in being cast down, or listening to the prophets of evil who will be sure to come around with their doleful forebodings. Constant, intelligent work, added to wise planning, will put a new face on the fields in the next six weeks.

Corn Fodder and Clover.

Prairie Farmer.]

It is conceded that an acre of corn fodder is generally equal in value to three-fourths of an acre of timothy, writes J. M. Rice, of Riverdale, Mo. It will not be disputed that there is an enormous waste of fodder. That increased attention is being given to improved methods of cutting, curing and storing is abundantly evidenced by the large space that its discussion occupies in the agricultural press, especially that which is somewhat local to Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, and by the use of special and adaptable machinery in the handling of it. It will be well for farmers interested to post up on the matter now, and be ready for cutting and threshing the crop next fall.

Corn fodder alone is not a good ration for stock, and should be supplemented with clover. Now is the time to prepare for the clover crop. We would advise large sowings for several reasons. It is a crop that does well over a larger area of country than any other, though with varying yields. Different sections and different soils require different treatment in sowing. Here we can sow in early spring on the bed of winter wheat or rye; or perhaps the best way is to sow after the first harrowing of oats. It makes a fine growth with the other grain, and as the weather is apt to be moist at harvest time it is not killed out by hot suns when exposed after the cutting away of the grain.

In sections where it is likely to be dry in midsummer we should advise sowing alone on stubble-ground early in the spring, and then keep weeds mowed down two or three times during the season. This will prevent at any time a dense shade, and also furnish a mulch for the young plants. Then there will be no woody, coarse weeds to rake up with the crop the next year. For one of the best paying crops, simply as a crop and for the drawing in and retaining of valuable elements of the soil, sow clover.

Farm and Garden Notes.

See that each fowl gets its share of feed.

Carefully save all the meat scraps for your fowls.

Remember that sand, gravel and like substances are essential to fowls.

Watch prices and prospects, and market your produce opportunely.

Wise stock-raisers now try to grow meat rather than to accumulate fat.

Land plaster, carbolic acid and kerosene are all good for the chicken-house.

Do not forget that hens learn to eat eggs by having the broken ones left in the nest.

Do not neglect to place clean, pure water every day in accessible places for your fowls.

Starving or freezing an animal is one way to render farming both unprofitable and unpopular.

Make the most profitable use possible of all your products, for in this often lie the profits of farming.

$6000.00 a year is being made by John B. Goodwin, Troy, N. Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay SURE for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, SPEEDILY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

$3000 A YEAR! I undertake to briefly teach any fair intelligent person of either sex, who can read and write, and who, after instruction, will work industriously, how to earn Three Thousand Dollars a Year in the town or localities, wherever they live. I will also furnish the situation or employment at which you can earn that amount. No money for me unless successful as above. Easily and quickly learned. I desire but one worker from each district or county. I have already taught and provided with employment a large number, who are making over $3000 a year each. It is NEW and SOLID. Full particulars FREE. Address at once, E. C. ALLEN, Box 420, Augusta, Maine.

THE PROPERTY OF THE COMPANY CONSISTS OF

FIRST. 8,000 City Lots, or 2,022 acres of land in the city of Tallapoosa, Haralson County, Georgia, the residue remaining unsold of 2,500 acres, on the centre of which the city was originally built. Present value $1,084,765.

SECOND. 2,458 acres of valuable mineral land, adjacent to the city of Tallapoosa, all located within a radius of six miles from the centre of the city. Present value $122,900.

THIRD. The issued Capital Stock of the Georgia, Tennessee & Illinois Railroad Company, chartered for the purpose of building a railroad from Tallapoosa, Ga., to Stevenson, Ala., 120 miles, that will net the company nearly $2,000,000 of the capital stock of railroad, paying 7 per cent. dividends.

FOURTH. The Tallapoosa Furnace, on the line of the Georgia-Pacific Railroad, in the city of Tallapoosa, Ga.—the said furnace being of 50 tons capacity, manufacturing the highest grade of cold and hot blast charcoal car-wheel iron. Present value $250,000.

FIFTH. The Piedmont Glass Works, situated on the line of the Georgia-Pacific Railroad, in the city of Tallapoosa, Ga., said plant being 12-pot furnace capacity, and manufacturing flint-glass flasks and prescription-ware. Present value $100,000.

There is already located on the property of this Company, in the city of Tallapoosa, Ga., 2,800 inhabitants, 2,000 of whom are Northern people, who have settled in Tallapoosa within the last three years, 632 houses, 25 manufacturing industries, and 40 business houses, schools, churches, water-works, electric lights, $75,000 hotel, and new manufacturing industries building, etc.

50,000 SHARES TREASURY STOCK

Are now offered to the public, the proceeds to be devoted to locating new manufacturing establishments and developing the Company's city property, at a SPECIAL PRICE OF $3.50 PER SHARE.

This stock is full paid and subject to no assessments. It will pay dividends April and October, and the price will be advanced to $5.00 per share when the 50,000 shares are sold.

Orders for stock will be filled as received, in any amount from one share upward, as it is desired to have as many small holders in all sections of the country as possible, who will, by their interest in the Company, influence immigration to Tallapoosa, and advance the interests of the Company.

Address all orders for stock, and make checks, drafts, or money and express orders payable to

JAMES W. HYATT, Treasurer, Ga.-Ala. Investment and Development Co.,

Globe Building, 244 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

☞ 80-page illustrated Prospectus of Tallapoosa, Stock Prospectus of Company, and Plat of city, with Price-list of building lots, mailed free on application. Reliable agents wanted to represent the Company in every county. Jan'y 29, 1891—4m
